When you call these scammers, they tell you to fill out this price quote form or this web-based survey so they can "confirm your technical support needs." They require you to enter your name, phone number, computer make and model, and the specific issues you need help with. They will even ask you to pay for the help you need (with a credit card or PayPal), and they will go on to charge you lots of money for services that you did not actually request. Private: The only version of the product that was mailed to the manufacturer. No technical support is available. Corporate: The only version of the product that was mailed to the manufacturer. No technical support is available. Home: The version of the product that is downloaded and installed on your computer or other device. Pro: All the features of Private and Corporate. Terms of use

Once you have downloaded the ICT from the website you have to follow these steps: 1. First of all you have to uncompress the downloaded files into a folder. 2. Open the Inet Controler icon in the start menu under the control of your operating system and it will display the application window. 3. Now click on the "Get inet time control" button. 4. Then you will be prompted for your name and password and then you can choose the time frame where the connection will be allowed or will be not allowed. 5. Then you will see a screen with the name of the connection and the connection allowed or not allowed time frame. Now you can start to use the Inet Controler and you will have a maximum time control for the dial up modem connection. This is a very easy program to use and you will see that you can save your time too. Introduction of Sun Hotjava: The development of Hotjava started in June 2006 and its final release was in November 2007. The first Hotjava release available for public use was version 1.5.0.0, released in November 2007. Hotjava was initially created as a free Java implementation aimed at the web-based execution of applications. Packaged App is a portable version of Sun Java 6 applet or application, so it can be run on Windows, Macintosh, and Linux machines. It is a hybrid of executable packaged app and applet app. The executable packaging creates an installer that leaves no Java runtime environment files, so you can clean your computers. To start a packaged app, double-click the packaged app file. This action will start the applet or application. If you do not want to display the applet or application window, you can use the menu command Edit->Preferences. If you do not want to load Java applet or application in the browser, you can use menu command Disable Java->Preferences in order to disable the Java applet or application. In addition to that, in order to stop the running of the packaged application you can use a menu command Force Quit. Toolbars: New in version 0.3: There are 4 new toolbar buttons and 2 new toolbar groups added to the window toolbar. Edit->Preferences: Default setting for the browse button is "Refresh Icons" and it will refresh all icons in the window. If you do not want to have the download icon
